Biography

"Se wo pe se wo daye bamua sore."

"If you want to live your dream, you have to wake up!"

—African Proverb

 The story of Albert Mensah, "Prince of Possibilities," is one of triumph over adversity, of acting on every opportunity to make his greatest dreams a reality. Albert grew up in Ghana, Africa, one of the most impoverished nations in the world. He was born in a village where as a child he walked eight miles, barefoot, twice a day to carry firewood and water back to his family's home, which had no electricity or plumbing.

At age eight his family moved to the city where Albert saw an American movie and witnessed the fantastic opportunities in this country. Getting to America became his dream, his passion and his goal. He did everything he could from "practically living at the library" to learn all he could about America, to earning money for stamps to keep in touch with his American pen pals. His friends, aware of his obsession, soon gave him the nickname "States." In 1978

Albert's dream came true when he won a full four-year scholarship to Western Maryland College.

On August 29, 1994, another dream became reality when Albert proudly took the oath of American citizenship. He entered the sales arena and quickly exceeded his sales quota. Within his first year, he was number one in sales, new market penetration and total percentage gain within his company. He soon went on to become a successful business owner himself. Albert's love of being with and in front of people led him to the speaker's platform and a host of awards. In 1999 alone he won the first runner-up title at the prestigious Toastmasters International World Championship of Public Speaking.

Albert is now a highly sought-after, charismatic and talented speaker whose engaging stories inspire audiences to action—both in their personal and professional lives. Because of his own background selling for and owning a business, he understands your company's goal to increase morale and more importantly, productivity. Through his captivating presentation, Albert shows your audience how to recognize opportunities they might otherwise overlook, even seek out opportunities in change, challenges and other obstacles — their "fear snakes" — then develop an action plan to act on those opportunities today.

Albert leaves a lasting impression everywhere he goes by speaking from his heart with passion and humor about how to wake up your dreams and realize the Opportunities of a Lifetime!
